Jews Fight Britons As Vessel Boarded

JERUSALEM, April 23 (BUP)—The British Navy today brought 750 Jewish refugees into Haifa harbor aboard the blockade runner Shear Yashuv, seized yesterday by a boarding party after a battle in which nine Jews and three British sailors were wounded.

Senate Approval Given Aid Plan

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Under attack as a "blank cheque," the administration $350,000,000 foreign relief bill hit the House of Representatives floor today less than 24 hours after the Senate sealed its approval on an historic American $400,000,000 program to help Greece and Turkey curb Communism.

THE REFUGEES from Poland and Romania were subdued when the 300-ton Shear Yashuv was escorted into the harbor with armed British Guards on the bow. Within an hour all the refugees were transferred to the Empire Comfort and Empire Lifeguard for shipment to Cyprus detention camps. Army reinforcements were reported guarding the outskirts of Haifa against any retaliation.

An official statement said the boarding party ran into strong resistance.

No Agreement Conference Nearing End

By R. H. Shackford

MOSCOW, April 23 (BUP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall tonight unequivocally blamed the Soviet Union for the failure of this session of the council of foreign ministers to reach agreement on the Austrian and German peace treaties, and threatened to take the Austrian case to the United Nations at next fall's general assembly meeting.

MARSHALL made two formal statements at what is expected to be the next to last meeting of the Big Four here. The ministers scheduled another meeting for tomorrow afternoon and asked their deputies to report on what they recommend that the ministers should do with the Austrian treaty, which is nearly completed.

Marshall blamed Molotov directly: 1. For rejecting the United States four power disarmament treaty for Germany, and said he found it difficult to understand the Soviet reasons for declining to agree to it.

2. For refusing to budge an inch on a definition of German assets in Austria since last February—

NEW YORK, April 23 (BUP)—Serge Rubinstein, 38-year-old "Boy Wizard of Wall Street" who was convicted yesterday as a draft dodger, was sentenced today to serve two and one-half years in federal prison, and fined $50,000.

Sees Drive Toward War

Wallace Advocates Huge Aid Program

PARIS, April 23 (BUP)—Henry A. Wallace charged tonight that there was "a tremendous drive in the United States which might easily lead to World War III."

WALLACE, ATTACKING President Truman's foreign policy, made the charge at a meeting under the sponsorship of the American Veterans Committee.

It came after he had advocated a $50,000,000,000 program on international loans in which $15,000,000,000 would go to the Soviet Union to get the world's economy back on its feet.

Wallace charged that both Russia and the United States had taken steps which had "undermined the

Murder Charged In Razor Slaying

LEAMINGTON, Ont., April 23 (CP)—Nick Stoyan, 71-year-old onion-grower, was arranged in Windsor today on a charge of murder in the razor slaying of his Russian-born friend, John Starchuk, 75, slashed to death a few hours earlier in a lonely marsh cabin they shared near here.

Stoyan was remanded to April 29. He was arrested by Ontario provincial police early today a short time after Starchuk was slain in a bedroom of their tiny dwelling. Two other persons—Mrs. Starchuk and a small boy—were in an adjoining room when Starchuk was murdered.

The elderly men were sharecroppers on the rich onion marshes of Point Pelee in Mersea township. Police said that Stoyan, a Bessarabian, tried to commit suicide with the razor he allegedly used to kill his cabin mate.

Fast Time Raises Post Office Problem

Decision as to whether the Edmonton city postal services will adopt daylight saving time—scheduled to begin midnight Saturday—has been referred to the authorities at Ottawa, H. W. Gregory, postmaster, said Wednesday.

He said that by adoption of the new time there would be a conflict of an hour in arrival of mail on certain trains from the east, which, with the railways maintaining standard time, would be delivered at the post office one hour after mail carriers had left on their routes.

Under the new scheme this would effect a delay in deliveries to residential areas, he said.

The spokesman said the youth, who was taken to hospital with four gun wounds, stated that his mother was divorced from Dr. Alfred I. Hallowell, former professor of anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania.

The shooting followed a wild race through North Philadelphia streets as two patrol cars chased Hallowell in what Sgt. Creeden said was a stolen car.

Hospital attaches described the youth's condition as "very poor."

Crown Opens Appeal Of Dick Acquittal

TORONTO, April 23 (CP)—Speaking for two hours without interruption, W. B. Common, crown counsel, today opened the crown's appeal against acquittal of Mrs. Evelyn Dick on a charge of murdering her husband, John, at Hamilton, March 6, 1946. Reading portions of evidence from the crown's 1,062-page brief, Mr. Common said there was "one ground only" for the appeal—that Mr. Justice J. C. McRuer was "wrong in law" when he rejected Mrs. Dick's statement to police as evidence at her trial.

Charge British Beat Russians

BERLIN, April 23 (Reuters)—Allegations that two Red Army sergeants were "wildly beaten" by British military police, one man losing an eye, were made by Maj.-Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Soviet Commandant in Berlin, at last night's meeting of the Allied Kommandatura, according to the Tagliche Rundschau, Berlin Soviet paper, today.

Kotikov demanded immediate investigation of the incidents, alleged to have occurred in the British sector of Berlin where the two Russian sergeants were stranded after their truck ran out of gasoline.

Observers in Berlin regarded the protest as extraordinary because—though British press correspondents were briefed last night after the Kommandatura meeting—no information was given regarding the protest.

Stoyan was remanded to April 29. He was arrested by Ontario provincial police early today a short time after Starchuk was slain in a bedroom of their tiny dwelling. Two other persons—Mrs. Starchuk and a small boy—were in an adjoining room when Starchuk was murdered.

Soup Kitchens Open For Miners' Families

STELLARTON, N.S., April 23 (CP)—Industrial Pictou County, where the highest rate of unemployment in Canada has been aggravated by the nine-week-old coal strike, today had soup kitchens for the first time in 22 years. The soup, cooked in huge army dixies by volunteers working in a potato chip plant, was trucked to two central homes in the colliery area for distribution to needy families among those of the 1,400 miners on strike.

Vote Contempt Actions Against Communists

Want U.S. Get Tough With Reds

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Amid demands for a tougher policy toward Communists, the House of Representatives yesterday voted contempt actions against Eugene Dennis, secretary of the Communist party, and Leon Josephson, described on the House floor as head of a ring that provided forged passports for Soviet secret police.

HOUSE MEMBERS said Josephson, a Russian-born New York lawyer, is a key man in the international Communist movement.

In the event of court convictions, Dennis could draw a year in jail and a $1,000 fine on one contempt charge and Josephson the same penalty on each of two charges which the house proposed. The contempt action will go to the district attorney here to be laid before a grand jury.

Both refused to testify freely to the Senate committee on un-American activities. DENNIS FAILED to show up for the committee questioning April 9 in answer to a subpoena.

Condemn Singer As Fascist

Stench Bombs and Boos Greet Kirsten Flagstad

PHILADELPHIA, April 23 (AP)—The aroma of stench bombs and boos filled the hallowed Academy of Music at the Kirsten Flagstad concert in what a music critic today described as the "worst demonstration" ever experienced at the academy.

The outbreak came at a concert given by the Norwegian soprano as pickets paraded before the academy with signs reading "Flagstad preferred a Nazi regime —don't play second fiddle! — Stay out!" and "Artists are not above judgment. We condemn Hitler! We condemn Flagstad!"

Over 1,000 persons were present when Mme. Flagstad made her initial appearance on stage. She was greeted with a wild ovation which lasted more than a moment and her first selection was well received.

However, booing began and the first stench bomb was dropped in the loges. But supporters were not driven out.

Ushers and detectives ejected hecklers as another stench bomb was dropped.

Then several of the patrons accosted a heckler and for a few moments before the concert resumed, there was a free-for-all virtually at the singer's feet with opposing sides shouting "Communist" and "Fascist" at each other.

No arrests were made.

Truman to Visit Canada in June

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—The White House said today that President Truman is planning a visit to Canada—perhaps about June 10. Presidential Secretary Charles Ross told newspapermen a trip to Canada and a visit to Princeton University June 16 to receive a degree constituted the president's only definite travel plans at this time. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, here after a holiday in Virginia, was on the White House calling list today.

Rep. Karl Mundt (Rep.-S.D.) said the Communist secretary is "a spy of a lower species than any spy of a lower species I am not a foreign agent, nor the 'boss' of all Reds in this or any other country, and I am not a dangerous enemy of the United States."

He said he was a "German Communist" seeking only to return to Germany to help build "a peaceful, democratic, progressive" government there.

Alberta Settlement Plan Nearly Ready

By Dick Jackson
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23—Negotiations are approaching "a successful conclusion" between the Dominion and Alberta governments for the settling of ex-servicemen as full-time farmers on 225,000 acres of provincial crown land around Wanham. The Bulletin today was informed by senior executives of the Veterans' Affairs Department.

Agreement between the two governments will be announced within a few days, committing the Dominion government, under special provisions of the Veterans' Land Act, to put up $2,320 for each ex-serviceman settling on the 225,000 acre tract of provincial land.

Of the $2,320 Dominion government grant, the veteran may spend $1,200 for stock and equipment and the other $1,120 on clearing and breaking the land and other improvements to the property.

TO EQUIP the veteran settlers the VLA branch of DVA has building materials and farm machinery stock-piled.

The proposal for settlement of ex-servicemen as full-time farmers in the Wanham district was initiated by the Alberta government which then approached the Veterans' Affairs Department in Ottawa for Federal financial participation in the scheme.

VLA officials assigned to look over the land, survey the background and future prospects of potential settler applicants, and examine the proposal from all aspects, reported back favorably to VLA Director Gordon Murchison and deputy minister Walter Woods.

INTER-GOVERNMENT negotiations were opened, and their successful conclusion may be announced as early as next week, believed DVA senior executives, probably from Edmonton.

OTTAWA, April 23 (CP)—A. J. Joliffe, the government's director of immigration, said today his branch and the department of labor "are actively engaged in determining the labor requirements in agriculture, mining, lumbering and logging with a view to bringing to Canada from Europe immigrants in these classes where it is established their services are required."

Appearing before the Senate immigration committee to give a resume of steps taken by Canada to open her gates to foreigners, he said "the matter of the admission of domestic servants is also under consideration."

"It is not possible to select immigrants in many countries at present, the main source of supply for any bulk movement of the classes of labor admissible is displaced persons in occupied territory."

Mr. Joliffe said "the chief obstacle to an extensive immigration movement this year is ocean transportation."

Radio Stars Are Cut Off Air

"Ribbing" Bosses Gets Comics in Dutch

HOLLYWOOD, April 23 (AP)—It's no joke to the National Broadcasting Company when its high-priced comedians poke fun at their bosses.

The network, which cut Fred Allen off the air briefly Sunday when he sought to comment on the activities of a mythical NBC vice-president, gave Bob Hope and Red Skelton the same treatment last night when they essayed a little ribbing on the Allen case.

Red was silenced for about 12 seconds when, after an exchange of quips with his straight man, he said: "Be careful, we might as lib something that will hurt the dignity of some NBC vice-president. Did you hear them cut Fred Allen off Sunday?"

That's when they pulled the plug on Red, but he went right on to the benefit of his studio audience: "You know what NBC means, don't you? Nothing but cuts, nothing but confusion, nobody certain."

He had the last word, anyway, because when they put him back on the air he commented: "Well, we have now joined the parade of stars."

WARSPITE AGROUND
LONDON, April 23 (Reuters)—The veteran battleship Warspite, breaking adrift on her way to the shipbreaker's yard, was today coasted around on Britain's west coast. Cuddan Point is a rocky headland in West Cornwall, 3½ miles southeast of Penzance.

Hope got in bad after referring to Las Vegas, Nev., wide-open gambling resort city, as the "only place in the world where you can get tanned and faded at the same time." He then added "Of course, Fred Allen can be faded anytime" and the switch was thrown.

Network officials were silent beyond the brief statement that the censored material was "objectionable to NBC." Edna Skelton, Red's writer and former wife, said the deleted material in the script had been disapproved by the network but that "Red was determined to use it anyway."

Allen started the whole thing Sunday night in New York when he referred to a non-existent NBC vice-president who, he said, was "in charge of program ends" and "noted the time saved when programs ran overtime."

Allen explained that this person saved up seconds, minutes and hours until he had amassed two weeks, then took a two-week vacation. His sponsor's advertising agency claimed Allen was cut off the air for 35 seconds, and said it would bill NBC for the lost time.

Gracey, assistant commissioner of the Canadian National Railways, completes his evidence before the board.

"I HAVE CRITICIZED actions that accelerate this trend 'toward eventual world war,' he said, 'and I shall criticize those actions whether they are taken by Britain, America, Russia or any other nation.'"

Wallace said that the cause of peace requires the "same militant positive support" which was given to the war and that none of its members have accorded the United Nations all-out support.

"Once the conflict is seen as irreconcilable no guarantee is adequate to save the United Nations or the peace," Wallace said.

He said he felt that history and geography impelled Russia "to push continually for free access to the Mediterranean and the Dardanelles."

EUROPE AND ASIA, Wallace said, have lost so much industrial and agricultural production during the war that they cannot adequately be reorganized without American aid.

"If American aid is provided for constructive purposes through the United Nations," he said, "then these nations can give full support to the United Nations and full attention to problems of raising living standards."

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—The government reaffirmed today that it would take no action against the government-owned BBC for permitting Henry A. Wallace to use its facilities for an attack on the Truman doctrine.

Answering a question in the Commons, the assistant postmaster-general, W. A. Burke, who has responsibility for the BBC, said it was the policy of successive governments to afford the BBC independence in the choice of programs and program material.

NEW TORONTO, Ont., April 23.—(CP)—Harry Silver, president of clothing and home furnishings stores in the Lakeshore communities of New Toronto and Port Credit, has knocked 10 per cent off the prices on all his goods in a campaign against inflation.

A check yesterday, a few days after Silver made his original announcement showed no more customers than usual in his stores. But he has emphasized his move was not to gain publicity or greater sales but in the hope that others would follow his example.

Hotels Contribute $1,102,082 to CNR

OTTAWA, April 23.—(CP)—Hotels operated by the Canadian National Railways contributed $1,102,082 to the system's income in 1946, the Board of Transport Commissioners was told today. T. J. Gracey, assistant CNR comptroller, testified at the freight-rate hearing that the operating profit of the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa had been $383,036, while that of the Nova Scotian at Halifax had been $139,946. These figures included taxes, but did not take into account interest on investment.

LONDON, April 23.—(Reuters)—Explosives hidden inside oranges were smuggled into the Palestine jail where two Jewish terrorists awaiting execution committed suicide last week-end, Lord Hall, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Lords today.

Weighty Problem

CHICAGO, April 23 (AP)—Police ran into a weighty problem when they looked up James (Fat) Winters at the detective bureau yesterday. Winters, 34, weighs 350 pounds. Previously under indictment in a $10,000,000 illicit sugar stamp racket, he was seized and ordered held without charge after police said a victim accused him and two other men of defrauding him of $7,500. Detectives said Winters wouldn't fit into a regular cell. He stuck in the doorway. He finally was wedged into a two-man cell.

Two watches and wedding ring alleged to have been obtained with a worthless bank draft were responsible for two brothers appearing on charges in city court Wednesday morning.

Clifford G. Sinclair, 12252 93 street, pleaded guilty to a charge of false pretenses and was remanded for one week. The accused is alleged to have obtained a sight draft, which he used to buy the watches and ring from a jeweller. The draft was for $451. The accused is reported to have received a cheque for $286.90 as change from his purchase of the jewelry. This second cheque he also cashed and spent.

Duncan Sinclair, Edmonton, Clifford's brother, pleaded not guilty to a charge of being in possession of the watches and ring. He was remanded for trial in supreme court with bail set at $1,000.

Striking Miners Seek Govt. Aid

HALIFAX, April 23.—(CP)—Executive members of the striking United Mine Workers (CCL) district 26 and representatives of the Nova Scotia Federation of Labor (CCL) will go into session with the provincial cabinet today to ask the government to bring pressure upon Ottawa for action on the demands of 13,000 Maritime miners for higher wages and other benefits.

The announcement of today's special session came last night at a mass meeting here on behalf of the strikers following a labor parade and lobby during the afternoon by approximately 300 Nova Scotia miners.

A 40-man delegation conferred with individual members during the lobby period on the question of the miners' requested $1.40 a day wage increase, pension plan and welfare fund and the continuation of federal government subsidies to meet the new labor demands.

To Ask More Pay

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23.—(CP)—George Burl, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), said today the union soon will make formal requests to major automotive and farm implement manufacturers for "adequate wage increases." He said the amount of the increases would not be disclosed until negotiations started.

the issue which is blocking the Austrian treaty.

MARSHALL left the door open a thin crack, however, for a last minute concession by Russia to tomorrow when he said "unless, therefore, the Soviet delegation has some concrete proposal to make on this subject which will make clear that German assets do not include assets which in justice and in equity should be restored to non-Germans, I must accept the fact that further progress on the Austrian treaty is impossible at this conference."

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov agreed to study the Marshall proposal tonight and give an answer at what may be the last session of the Moscow conference tomorrow.

THE CONFERENCE is expected to adjourn tomorrow.

Marshall proposed that unless there is agreement by next fall on the Austrian treaty he would ask the UN general assembly to make recommendations at its next regular meeting.

The ministers earlier at their 43rd meeting here cleaned up odds and ends. They referred to the Allied Control Council most of the German issues discussed but not agreed upon here. They did reach one agreement—to return all German prisoners of war in Allied countries or elsewhere to Germany by Dec. 31, 1948.

AT THE END of the meeting Marshall succeeded in getting Molotov to agree to discuss tomorrow the possibility of reducing occupation forces in Germany.

Plan Unification

Asks Co-Operation Religious Leaders

VICTORIA, April 23 (CP)—Scientists and politicians should give wholehearted co-operation to religious leaders in securing a recognized world-wide standard of right conduct, so that there may be no misuse of scientific discoveries, Rt. Rev. Harold E. Sexton, Bishop of British Columbia, told the 45th session of the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of British Columbia today.

"There is frequent and irresponsible talk of another war, which we are told by our scientists, is the certainty of extermination," Bishop Sexton said. "It seems we must control atomic energy or die from its misuse."

"Racial, religious and political antipathies have never been more active than today. We have come to the end of an age of bankrupt secularism, and our survival demands a return to the religious control of society and human life."

The clergy needed "to emphasize more frequently the difference between the christian standard in marriage and the secular standard."

Radio License Fees

In its attempt to provide Canada with a national radio service, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation produces two very different types of programs—the unsponsored public service broadcasts and the commercial show.

Originally the CBC had intended that all its programs would be non-commercial in nature, but gradually these unsponsored broadcasts are being replaced by commercials. Today a large proportion of the best broadcasting time (7 p.m. to 10 p.m.) is taken up by programs devoted to selling commodities.

There are good reasons for this change. First, rising operational costs forced the CBC to obtain sources of revenue other than the $2.50 fee that every Canadian radio owner must pay. Second, the public didn't care for the public service broadcasts, but did care for the commercial programs. Public opinion surveys made this very clear.

Now that the CBC has become so commercialized, it seems doubtful that a good case can be made for the continuance of the listener's fee.

This was justified as long as the Corporation was providing unsponsored programs, but with the concentration on commercial programs it is unfair to force the radio listening public to pay the Corporation for the privilege of listening to its advertisements.

Certainly the American networks, which provide both commercial and unsponsored broadcasts at least as good as the CBC's, find it possible to stand on their own feet. It is time that the CBC did likewise.

"More" Is the Answer

The House of Commons approved the recently announced changes in rental control regulations. Two amendments were rejected. Both originated with a Conservative member for one of the Toronto ridings. The first would have permitted eviction of a tenant who is occupying "shared" accommodation. The other would permit a home-owning veteran to evict a tenant in order to gain possession in three months.

The first amendment would have worked hardship on a large number of veterans. These make up the great majority who are living in shared houses. To allow them to be ousted, and their quarters perhaps rented to non-veterans, would be cruelly unjust.

Both proposals were dangerous in that they would have led to demands for further modifications of the regulations. If parliament started boring holes in these the whole control structure could be honey-combed with exceptions and special provisions, and likely would be before very long.

Neither the changes made nor those proposed could go any way to solve the housing difficulty. At best these are only attempts to divide up scarcity. Any change of regulations and any refusal to change them, in such circumstances is bound to do injury to tenants or landlords in some instances.

The one way to get rid of rent control with justice and satisfaction to all parties is to build more houses and apartments. That is the point on which parliament should centre its attention. Arguing about who should have what accommodation is futile and provocative.

Up to the Assembly

On April 28th the Assembly of the United Nations is to meet in special session, to study the situation in Palestine, what should be done about it, and who should do what.

Events in Palestine and in London make plain that the session should have been called long ago. The only result of delay has been that things have drifted from bad to worse. This was predictable months since. There was no reason to expect anything else.

Britain has not thrown in its mandate. It has only asked the Assembly for advice, and that the United Nations thereby take a share of responsibility for events from now on. Thus far London has paid the bills and taken the blame. Now the onlookers are invited to do something beyond finding fault and keeping their own prestige in cold storage.

Either the United Nations will have to adopt Palestine or say they don't care what happens there.

A Spur to Self-Help

Washington is not proposing to hand Greece $300,000,000 or so of spending money, to be dissipated in temporary relief or a grand inflationary spree. The money will be earmarked for reproductive investment, to create opportunities for enterprise, quicken the initiative of the dispirited people, and so start the processes of real and dependable national recovery.

This has been made plain by official announcement of the conditions which are to surround the loan—or the grant, as it may in the long run turn out to be. The immediate effect of the announcement was to bring powerful support of the proposal from the Republican ranks, powerful enough to make sure that the plan will go through.

Perhaps it was only coincidence that the Greek Government a few days ago opened a full-scale attack on the guerilla bands which up to that time had been setting the national authority at defiance. But there is room to suppose this could not have happened if economic help for the stricken country had not come in sight. Greece has suffered so much that its people—like people in other war-afflicted countries—must have been in a fatalistic mood until this prospect of better times dawned upon them.

They have hope now of the means with which to rebuild their industrial and commercial life, their social conditions, and their national economy. Normally they are an industrious and ingenious people, well able to make their way in the world if given a fair chance. Now that they are to be given the chance, they will respond to the incentive.

Distance Lends Charm

The reeve of an Ontario town says he will pay the traveling expenses of any imported Communist in Canada who thinks he would like "to go back and live in Russia." It is not quite clear from the despatch that he even draws the line there and would not also supply a free ticket to any Canadian Red who may fancy he would prefer to dwell in the land of the Soviets.

This is a sporting offer that could run into a lot of money. But the chances are that the New Toronto chief won't have to buy any tickets for escapees from Stalin's empire. Any Russian-ward movement from this Dominion has been limited to a few young native-born chaps of an investigatory turn of mind who wanted to get a close-up view of the Marxian theory at work. Most of whom seem to have subsequently departed from their adopted country when the opportunity occurred.

As for Marxists who came here from Russia, they are still here, and won't go back for the offer of a free one-way trip. They are better off in Canada, and know it. Reeve MacDonald is not risking his bank account. Communist rule is something that those who have escaped it prefer to admire from a distance.

Supper time in Tokyo and dinner time in Edmonton hardly leaves one time to work up an appetite.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1887: 60 Years Ago

Victory—complete, unquestioned, overwhelming victory—at the polls during the last election does not appear to have been followed by that calm restfulness, that serene quietude of spirit on the part of the government papers of the Northwest that might have been expected. The trouble is that after having sacrificed their country to their party the latter has completed the work by sacrificing them. It calls the high strung souls of The Calgary Herald and The Qu'Appelle Progress to know that in filling the offices created by the new judicial act no attention was paid to them or their friends who have exerted themselves so strongly during the election to keep the administration in power. But they committed themselves to the support of the administration, right or wrong, and now why should any attention be paid to their wishes? If the government is infallible, on the disallowance question for instance, it surely cannot go far astray in making a petty appointment. But perhaps the politics of The Herald and The Progress relates more to the filing of offices than to the making of laws. Perhaps their party loyalty depends on the flow of party pay. They have won a victory—for someone else.

Russia and Germany

BY HARPER PROWSE, M.L.A.

One of the basic disagreements preventing the Big Four foreign ministers from reaching a decision about Germany centres around the question of reparations. The Russians insist that reparations should begin at once out of current German production. The others feel they should not begin to collect reparations until the German economy is on a sounder basis than now. They also fear that if reparations begin at present, much of the aid they are giving Germany now to keep the people from starving to death will find its way into Russian hands.

But behind this is a basic difference between the Russian and Western points of view which might well be the real reason, in spite of the troubles Britain and France are having today the standard of living of their people is much superior to that of the German people—or what the German standard is apt to be even with the assistance they are receiving, for years to come.

ON THE OTHER hand, in spite of the tremendous development which has taken place in Russia since the Revolution, the standard of living of the people is very low. So that at the present it is doubtful if the standard of living now being enjoyed by the average Russian is much, if any better, than that being enjoyed by the average German, and reports indicate that in some parts of Russia conditions are worse than they are in parts of Germany.

The Russians feel that their country would have been in a much better position today and her people able to enjoy a much higher standard of living if it had not been necessary to divert so much of her manpower and productive capacity towards fighting the Germans. They also remember what the Germans did to their country. Therefore they see no reason why they should permit their beaten enemies to enjoy a higher standard of living than the victorious Russian people.

For that reason the Russians feel that they are completely justified in demanding that the Germans be kept at a subsistence level and everything they produce beyond that level should go to raising the Russian standard of living. In other words Russia, unable to spare anything to help the Germans, wants the cream of German production.

THE WESTERN Allies, however, not having to endure such an unhappy comparison between the lot of their own people and the German people, and thinking in economic as well as political terms, can afford to be more generous with the Germans. They want to put Germany back on her economic feet in order to stabilize economic conditions throughout the world. But being suspicious of Russia's future plans they have no wish to make sacrifices themselves to help the Russians.

With this basic difference of outlook kept in mind it is not strange that the foreign ministers are having difficulty finding common ground to stand on. The amazing thing is not so much that they have failed so far to agree, but that they have the patience to keep on trying.

France Tackles a Crisis

French Information Service

Accelerated Occupational Training is one of the best hopes for French recovery. After the Liberation, there was a great discrepancy between manpower on the one hand and unemployment on the other. The prisoners, the deported, the German plan for industrial disorganization, all had contributed to keep young French workers from learning a trade. In May, 1946, the placement offices recorded 66,885 unfilled jobs, 42-243 of which could not be filled because there were no applicants who had the proper qualifications.

The length of apprenticeship, the apathy of employers, have resulted in unskilled workers being gradually substituted for fully qualified workers. This problem exists not only in France but in most of the countries whose economy has been disorganized by the war.

THE MONNET PLAN has endeavored to find a solution for this manpower crisis. In 1950, the level of French production must be more than 25 per cent higher than that of 1929. To accomplish this, a million new qualified workers must be introduced into the principal trades. Immigration is not enough in the present state of affairs. On the other hand, only thirty thousand young people leave the French apprentice school each year. There should be 100,000 more.

The centres of Accelerated Occupational Training have been created to remedy this shortage. Le Monde Illustré outlines the tasks of that organization in a recent issue as follows:

"What characterizes the organization is that it appeals to all those who have no definite trade, adults as well as young people (over seventeen), those who are physically handicapped, those who have suffered occupational injury, wounded war veterans, former members of the Maquis, former prisoners and deportees. It includes both men and women workers. Its first objective is to give, in record time, the occupational training which will make an unskilled worker into a worker who is perfectly qualified in a trade. Secondly, it reclassifies and rehabilitates those who have been hurt in industry and wounded veterans. An opportunity is offered for everyone to step up on the occupational ladder, to acquire a skilled and recognized technique and, when he leaves, to command higher wages."

"WHAT DISTINGUISHES the Accelerated Occupational Training from ordinary apprenticeship, other than the very short length of the training—usually six months—is the fact that the probationers receive a salary 25 per cent higher than that of the unskilled worker in the trade concerned."

"Not all the centres have been created since the Liberation. Ever since 1937, a certain number of them have been functioning under the control of the Ministry of Labor. But their original aim was confined to absorbing unemployed workers. Many have been adapted for special needs: training of gazogene mechanics, training of woodmen in carbonisation, etc. In November 1945, there were 43 permanent centres and 84 were created shortly afterwards. But according to the provisions of the Monnet Plan, 750 new centres with a capacity of 100 apprentices each should be set up in the next two years to retain the 20,000 qualified workers that are needed. This also means the training of 7,500 instructors, with the best, nationally recognized teaching methods."

"A GREAT EFFORT is being made by the government in all workers' circles to interview workers in the training centres. Even the services of motion picture makers have been enlisted. An excellent film by Jean Noel called 'The New Battle' has been made and widely distributed to workers' organizations. It is planned to improve the living conditions of the apprentices in the centres and to increase their pay."

"This organization and development of the centres are part of a national occupational training plan. The most important industries of the reconstruction program have a priority. That is to say, the

To Conquer Cancer

BY ELMORE PHILPOTT

Have you ever gone back to your old home town—years after you moved away to live in distant parts?

In some ways it's a devastating experience. Time marches on—and leaves ugly footprints on most faces. Those boys and girls you knew when you were very young are past the greatest of all the great divides now. The laughing, rollicking, rowdiest boy in all the school bulges below the belt, wears bifocals, collects rare old books, and never sweats.

The prettiest, most popular girl in the whole PHILPOTT school—back there about nineteen ten—is still pretty. Believe it or not, she is still unmarried. Yet if you had written down your school-boy guess of the name of the girl most certain to get married first, or most, she would have topped the list.

WHEN YOU GO back to the old town you hesitate to ask old friends you meet about their parents. There is something crude about the bald statement, "Is your father still alive?" You have to lead around to it, by easy stages.

But you get some surprises—happy shocks.

One thing you learn is—never mentally bury anybody too soon. Never get a jump ahead of God.

Otherwise you will be badly fooled. Take the case of Ed.

Away back after the first "war to end war," Ed got cancer. He was middle-aged then. I mentally wrote off Ed as just another certain casualty.

From time to time, when I would meet folks from the old home town, I would ask, "How's Ed?"—always, unconsciously at least, expecting to hear that he had passed along. But as the years passed, it began to be a sort of mild joke. Ed just naturally refused to lie down and die. Now, long, long past the allotted Biblical three score and ten years he is still hale and hearty—with nothing but a scar or two to remind him of the scourge, conquered by surgical skill applied in time.

I OFTEN WONDER whether more people die of cancer than die of fear of cancer.

Take my old friend, the dress-maker's mother, who lived most of her 92 years in Victoria, British Columbia.

They are supposed to be more English than the English in those parts. This old lady was more Irish, in temper; at least, at Saint Patrick's pig. When she was in her early sixties she went to the doctor. With well-meant, but mistaken bluntness, he told her she had cancer and had only a few months to live.

Instead of going home to curl up and die, the old girl went home hopping mad. She threw her cane across the room and smashed a dish or two.

Empire Defence

BY FRANK B. WALKER

London: The question of Imperial defence has been debated by both the House of Commons and the House of Lords. In each case there was a statement of government policy, which recognized the Commonwealth as "a free association of independent, sovereign countries."

But in each, as well, strong support was given to the idea of a centralized empire, with a common foreign policy and a common defence. This theory, which antedates the Commonwealth itself, has been powerfully reinforced, its supporters believe, by first, the admitted inability of the United Kingdom to support defence forces on a pre-war scale, and second, by the discovery of the atomic bomb.

THE OFFICIAL government view on the Commonwealth was clearly stated by Mr. A. V. Alexander. It was:

Commonwealth co-operation and defence can grow and flourish only if it is recognized that the Commonwealth is a free association of independent, sovereign countries, that all decisions that have to be made must be taken by these governments on their own responsibility.

No system of delegation to any central authority is possible under this system, and the more clearly and universally this is understood, the more likely it is that co-operation will be effective.

We have no prescriptive right to ask the self-governing dominions to assume responsibilities simply because, in the opinion of some people, the United Kingdom can no longer afford to bear them.

Mr. Alexander was speaking in the debate on the Defence White Paper but his view was not supported by two members of his own party, who felt that "our defence must be achieved on Commonwealth lines."

"We must deploy our resources over the Commonwealth," said Dr. Haden Guest, Labor member for North Island, "and begin to deploy our industries in the same way, now or in the near future, and draw on the resources of the Commonwealth in order to have the necessary forces at our disposal."

BUT IT FELL to a group of Conservative M.P.'s to make the strongest appeal for the centralized policy. Sir Ralph Glyn called for a "council of defence" for dispersal of arms manufacture across the Commonwealth and for "an approach being made much more closely than is now being made that the Dominions, realizing that we cannot bear this burden financially or otherwise, either in cash or in men, will themselves share—"

Brig. Austin Low felt that "at this moment the will to have an Imperial defence policy throughout the Commonwealth has never been more healthy."

"I BELIEVE," Brig. Low continued, "that the Dominions could make some increased contribution to our peacetime and current commitments, particularly those to do with occupation and policing."

They could also play a great part in building up the necessary bases and places from which we could properly defend our communications as part of our long term policy.

"I believe Imperial defence really means defence of the Empire, by the Empire, for the Empire..."

It was left to Mr. Philip Noel-Baker, winding up for the government, to add the final and correct note: "...We can only operate with the Dominions in ways in which their governments desire to co-operate with us."

But this will not end the debate. It continues among members of Parliament and in the newspapers and no doubt it will gain strength in the United Kingdom as long as the strain on Britain's resources remains and means are not found to relieve it.

How to Make Friends

BY CHESTER A. BLOOM

OTTAWA: The statement in the house by Mr. St. Laurent, that Newfoundland is sending a delegation to Ottawa to discuss entering Confederation, calls attention to another aspect of the Wheat Nationalization Bill.

How the Canadian wheat contract is crucifying Newfoundland's former good customers of Canada was recited recently in the senate by Senator A. N. McLean, Saint John, N.B., under the United Kingdom wheat contract, said Senator McLean, Canada has divorced Newfoundland from the Canadian home market.

WHAT WAS the result? Canadian wheat and flour exports to Newfoundland since 1941 up to the period of the United Kingdom-Canadian agreement were as follows: Barrels of flour or equivalent in wheat, 1941, 382,572; 1942, 411,182; 1943, 321,832; 1944, 372,741; 1945, 395,173; 1946, 423,374.

In this period, Newfoundland enjoyed the Canadian domestic price plus, of course, freight. But from the high of 423,374 barrels in 1946, Canadian wheat and flour exports to Newfoundland for the seven months from August 1, 1946 to February 28, 1947, fell to only 155,000 barrels.

"This was a period," said Senator McLean, "when Newfoundland was subjected to world prices." An ironic feature of this treatment of our close relatives is that in the interim Egypt, India, Malta, Iraq, Germany and Ceylon have been supplied with wheat on the basis of the United Kingdom agreement, known as class I wheat, either direct by the wheat board or by the government of the United Kingdom.

SENATOR McLEAN said Newfoundland flour importers recently decided to refrain from purchasing Canadian flour because of the risk. Up to the time of the United Kingdom agreement, Canadian flour had always been quoted to Newfoundland buyers on the basis of the Montreal price plus the cost of water transportation to St. John's, Newfoundland. Many Canadian mills also were now refusing to sell private buyers in Newfoundland and similar export markets.

He quoted figures to show that the cost of Canadian flour to Newfoundland now is about $18 a barrel as against $10 last July while the Canadian home market price is $4.80.

HOT SPRING TREATMENT

Editor, Bulletin: It is well known that the hot sulphur springs at Banff have great medical value and, as facts prove, many people, young and old, have been cured thereby of such things as arthritis and rheumatism. The writer, a navy veteran of the war of 1914-19, at 75 took the advice of his doctor and twice, up to now, took the baths at Banff with great benefit. Though these visits were in September and October, when the tourist trade had slackened, there were still people there from other parts of Canada and from the U.S.A. and all praised the treatment.

But I did not see many war veterans. On making inquiry I learned that the government of Canada does not pay for this kind of treatment. Yet considering the expense of going to Banff and staying there even for two weeks, this is a large hole in the pocketbook of the veteran with a small pension. Is then, the government catering to the tourist at the war veteran's expense?

NORMANDY GRAVES

Editor, Bulletin—Our general secretary, has asked me to give the following the widest publicity.

The people of the department of Calvados, a part of Normandy, including Caen, Lisieux, Falaise, Bayeux, and Honfleur, have adopted and are anxious to adopt more of the graves of British and Canadian soldiers who fell in that part of France. They promise to visit the graves and to place flowers on them on certain days and also to write to the families of the fallen. Relatives should write to, Monsieur Gaudin, Franco-Grand Bretagne Association, 14 Rue du 29ieme Siecle, Caen, France.

Full particulars should be given of Regimental Number, Rank, Name, Regiment and location of the Grave.

Yours sincerely,

HUGH MORRISON, Dominion Representative, Old Contemptibles Association, Winnipeg.

See Many Changes In East Ridings

OTTAWA, April 23.—(CP)—Widespread changes in the boundaries of federal electoral constituencies in Quebec and Ontario were recommended yesterday in sub-committee reports presented to the Commons committee on redistribution.

The committee, meeting for the first time since prior to the Easter recess, did not immediately adopt all the suggested changes. Several of them were left in abeyance until next week at the request of some Ontario and Quebec members.

However, the committee, whose report must later be approved by the Commons, passed on division without a formally recorded vote—a recommendation that the Muskoka-Ontario constituency be eliminated.

Saskatchewan and Manitoba which will lose one seat each still have not reported to the committee and it is not yet definitely known what ridings will disappear.

There have been reports that John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) might see his riding eliminated at the next election. Portage La Prairie and MacDonald have been mentioned as among the seats which might be eliminated in Manitoba.

Begin Seeding On West Prairie

WINNIPEG, April 23.—(CP)—Farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan are up with the crack of dawn these days as seeding and cultivation of land at several points is well underway and at others is only a few days off.

IN MANITOBA, where spring came late and fields are still too soggy to be worked over by men and machines, seeding is expected to start by the first of May. Even if delayed longer, farmers in Manitoba are not worried, because they have started operations as late as May 15 and still harvested normal crops.

Spring wheat seeding started at Milk River, south of Lethbridge, Alta., April 17, on the farm of Fred Shelton and W. Schueck. A week earlier, however, J. Volk of Berdett, Alta., east of Lethbridge, began seeding rye while cultivation of land in the district started April 8.

Spring seeding and cultivation has also started in the Bassano district, about 80 miles east of Calgary, where the frost is now leaving the ground.

OTTAWA, April 23.—(CP)—The question of what should be done with the Japanese in Canada was raised in the Commons again yesterday but the debate mainly proved to be a revival of arguments used in similar discussions at previous sessions. One of the few new developments in the discussions scheduled to continue today, was an amendment by Labor Minister Mitchell that the Dominion government had lifted its restrictions on the movements of Japanese in parts of Canada east of British Columbia. He said the restrictions had been lifted April 14 and since that time the Japanese were free to go where they liked east of B. C.

V-1 and V-2 Outmoded

Report War Rockets Are Obsolete Weapons

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP)—The Army Air Forces said yesterday it considers the V-1 and V-2 rockets now "obsolete weapons" and is concentrating on new supersonic guided missiles.

In a statement the AAF said the German - invented rockets are no longer of technical value and that AAF technicians are convinced that "the only practical use of the V-1 and V-2, in the light of modern scientific advancements is as research models in the defense against guided missiles."

The AAF said it built about 1,000 copies of the V-1 before the end of the war in the Pacific (the original plan was to use them against the Japanese but the war ended too soon) and that 181 were turned over to the navy which designated them JB-2 or "Loons."

"The experiments by the Army Air Forces" said the statement, "quickly indicated that the JB-2 was inadequate for tactical use, since new jet fighters were at least 100 miles an hour faster than the bomb, which could be easily destroyed in combat before penetrating into a target area."

In addition, development of such new supersonic guided missiles as the "Gapa" rocket (an anti-aircraft weapon) rendered the buzz-bomb type obsolete due to slow speed and short range.

Gouzenko Retracts Erroneous Charge

TORONTO, April 23—(CP)—H. F. Skye, national treasurer of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund, yesterday made public a retraction by Igor Gouzenko of a statement that money collected for the fund "went—not to the poor Russian children but to the not-so-poor Soviet agents in Canada."

The corrective statement signed by Gouzenko said: "A statement in the May issue of New World quotes me as saying that money contributed to the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund was used to pay Soviet agents. I had no thought in mind of attacking this fund for I realize that it performed a wonderful service and its funds were properly used. No doubt my interviewer considered that my reference to some funds raised in Canada supposedly to aid Russia had reference to the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund, and I regret very much that I left the impression that this particular fund was improperly administered."

Brave New World

Yesterday, reading through the current copy of the New Yorker I came across a paragraph in a report from London written by that magazine's distinguished correspondent, Mollie Panter-Downes, which should be passed on.

"It is not precisely gay in England these days, but it is not uninspiring," she writes. "People seem to feel that belief in themselves and in the ultimate happy ending to their troubles make the present hardships tolerable. As one English woman said the other day, 'I know with absolute certainty that England will come through all right—though I wish to God I knew.' This is the blind faith that served well for dark days in the war and may yet serve well enough for this darkest day, to date or victory."

The paragraph rang a bell in my mind. I went to the files to look up an article on England that I wrote for the British Columbia Digest a year ago. In it is this short paragraph:

"For all their weariness and turbulence, the everyday people met on trains, in pubs and in their own bleak homes, seemed to look on the future with an interest and faith that was contagious. No one could be among them without feeling a kind of personal challenge to be a part of that future."

These two parallel thoughts, a year apart, are supplemented each day by all that I read in English newspapers and in letters from my friends there. The spirit of a nation is not the kind of thing that will make a headline in a newspaper, but it is, in the most exciting and important story of the day.

The Challenge

One of the most common experiences of men who served overseas and who returned to this country was a period of readjustment to the even, pleasant flow of life. During the war there was an intense singleness of purpose in men who wore uniforms. It was an unhappy time, yet, in retrospect, it seems to have been wonderfully exhilarating.

Peace was a positive goal to be worked for, and fought for, with desperate determination.

There seemed to be no satisfactory substitute for that when we returned. Overseas we used to say that all we wanted when we got back was that life be the same old happy thing we remembered. It did not take us long to find that we did not want that at all. We found a Canada working backward, falling into all the old, loved patterns, and somehow it did not seem as important as we had dreamed.

Those of us who had remained a while in England and in Europe after the victory, found that the challenge to the people there did not end with the guns. There was, and still is, a terrible struggle facing them. This in itself, gives a deep purpose to their individual lives. But it was something more. It was "something more" which all of us there observed, was that the struggle was not merely to restore, to return to things as they were, but to build on new conceptions, to create. Like the war, it gave the common people something that they could only imperfectly call "the pioneer spirit," but it was a spirit that caused many thousands of Canadians to return across the Atlantic, a challenge too compelling to resist.

When Needed

In England, itself, the great rallying cause in these, the worst years of all their lives, is the concept of a new deal for the people under the Labor government. I do not give this as an argument for a form of government, but as a fact. The people of England have found Socialism an undertaking as unifying as they found the struggle for victory. In the New Yorker article Mollie Panter-Downes puts it indirectly: "The English who sincerely hate the socialist regime are frequently sincere enough also to admit that if the recent crop of calamities had found Mr. Churchill's party in office, the country's mood possibly would have been far more dangerous than it is today."

In my own article a year ago I wrote, "The history books provide a good deal of evidence that the imagination of nations and people can be fired when they are hungry for the great crusades come at the blackest hours, that the longest strides toward civilization are made when they are most needed. Now, in our time, that is being proven again."

We, in this country, may soon have to face some calamities ourselves. When they come they will surely shake us out of this pleasant self-satisfaction.

No one who has tasted the hard joy of a people's sense of accomplishment in the face of difficulties can regret that the challenge in Canada. It is an inspiring spectacle in the building of the new world in England and in Europe, whatever else you may hear, and it can be the same here.

About 300 prairie manufacturers are expected to be in attendance. W. L. Wallace of Winnipeg, chairman of the division will preside.

West End Owners Protest High Cost

Protests have been received by City Clerk George S. Docherty against the high cost of proposed paving assessed against residents on 116 and 124 streets. The communications will be submitted to city council next Monday night.

The residents are not objecting to the paving, but are of the opinion that where the paving is being installed for street railway purposes, and for arterial roads, the entire cost should be borne by the city at large.

"They protest also against the high cost of the paving assessment, and are seeking a rate more equitable to the property owners affected."

Lack of Supplies Delays Building

Availability of building materials and supplies is holding back expansion of office and merchandise storage facilities of the J. H. Ashdown Hardware Co., Ltd., in Edmonton and other western cities where new construction is planned.

Harry C. Ashdown, Winnipeg, president of the firm, said here Wednesday.

"We plan additions to our facilities in Edmonton because of the steady growth of this city, and the surrounding district, but the uncertain building supply outlook is holding back start of the work," Mr. Ashdown said.

Expansions are also planned for Winnipeg and Calgary.

Mr. Ashdown did not reveal the extent or exact nature of the expansion for Edmonton, but did state he hoped the work would be started before fall.

The Ashdown company has branches in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon and Regina. The firm, founded at Winnipeg in 1889, at what was then known as Fort Garry, is the oldest wholesale hardware firm in Canada.

Mr. Ashdown will visit a day or two at Alberta and Saskatchewan branches, before returning to Winnipeg. He has been spending a holiday in California.

Scout Troop No. 2 To Hold Reunion

A reunion of former members of St. Faith's Church Boy Scout Troop No. 2 will be held at the St. Faith's parish hall, on Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

An invitation is extended to all former members of this troop to attend the meeting which will feature the presentation of badges and the investiture of several scouts.

A social evening is planned by members of the troop for the former members, and they will have an opportunity of again playing the games they so enjoyed when active in the scout movement.

The No. 2 Troop is the oldest in the city having been formed by the late Bishop H. A. Gray, and the late M. J. Hilton, former principal of the Edmonton technical school.

Delay Independent Executive Meeting

The meeting of the executive of the Independent party scheduled for this week end at the Palliser hotel, Calgary, has been postponed for one week, J. Percy Page, M.L.A., announced Wednesday.

The postponement of the date is made because many members of the executive have other engagements for this coming week-end.

In the call to the executive Mr. Page states that the matters to be come before the meeting will be the question of the future course of the association in view of the decision of the Liberal party's executive to call a convention in June to elect a provincial party leader. The meeting will be asked to decide whether or not the association will continue in the provincial arena, and if so what steps should be taken to speed up organizational activities.

Edmonton Bulletin

CONGRATULATIONS: Albert E. "Dad" Miller, 11445 73 street who celebrated his 80th birthday Wednesday, is shown lopping off the top of a tree which he was pruning in his front yard when the camera man arrived.

Served Police Force 33 Years

Veteran Campaigner Fetes 80th Birthday

By Jack Wilce

One of the last of the old brigade, and a man with a colorful military career, Albert E. "Dad" Miller, reached his 80th year Wednesday. He has served in every war involving the British Empire since confederation, and has served every sovereign since Queen Victoria. He was in her forces during the Riel Rebellion and the South African War.

"DAD," AS he is known to most people, came to Edmonton in 1905, and for 33 years he was a member of the city police force. When he first joined, there were four constables on strength of the city force.

He is in fine health and looks more like 65 years old than 80. Although he retired officially from the police force in December 1939, he carried on his duties until 1939.

One of his most memorable experiences of recent years occurred during the visit of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. After a talk with "Dad" in front of the Memorial Hall, the Field Marshal remarked, "why do you know I was just talking to a man who was serving his country before I was born."

Mr. and Mrs. Miller reside at 11445 73 street. A married daughter, Mrs. B. Buckman, lives in Edmonton while another married daughter, Mrs. P. MacDonald is at the west coast.

Can Save One in Three

Mayor Calls on Citizens To Back Drive on Cancer

No age is free from cancer. More children between five and 19 years of age die each year from cancer than die from the combined toll of scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, typhoid, pertinonitis, dysentery and diarrhoea, Mayor Harry Ainlay stated as he appealed to Edmontonians to support the campaign by the Canadian Cancer Society, Northern Alberta branch, to raise $25,000 in Edmonton and district.

"CANCER can be stamped out by proper clinics and medical research and services. I have no hesitation in endorsing the campaign to raise funds designed to extend research work, provide dressings for cancer patients, and increase the educational campaign so necessary for early diagnosis and treatment of the disease," Mayor Ainlay stated.

"It is a matter of considerable satisfaction to me that the committee handling The City of Edmonton Employees Welfare Fund has substantially increased its contributions for cancer relief. This action should give the lead for private contributions," Mayor Ainlay said.

The death rate from cancer is growing yearly, and it now occupies second place in the table of deaths, being second only to heart disease. The latter takes 29,046 lives each year, and cancer 14,215.

THIS DEATH RATE can be considerably reduced. Members of the medical profession state that one out of every three suffers from cancer that can be cured if the disease is treated in time.

"This early treatment can be achieved only through education of the public as to the causes of cancer, and its symptoms. This education will be provided by the Canadian Cancer Society with your aid. Therefore I would ask you to support this campaign and Give to Conquer Cancer."

TO SPEAK ON UNUS "United Nations or Else" will be the subject on which Prof. A.S.R. Tweedie of the department of extension, University of Alberta, will speak at a meeting of the United Nations Society, Edmonton branch, to be held at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the lecture room of the McDougall United church. Films will be shown.

Alberta Health Minister Says Courts Approve "Exporting" of Babies

Stressing the point that the Alberta Child Welfare commission cannot place any child in any home, either in Canada or in the United States without the approval of a district court judge, Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health, suggested Wednesday morning that Dr. Charlotte Whitton should take up her complaints about the "farming out" and the "export" of babies with the courts.

IN A COMMENT at Lethbridge in her controversy with Dr. Cross, Dr. Whitton said "Certainly Dr. Cross and Mr. Hill (superintendent of the child welfare branch) will try to deny the facts. Let them disprove them. A man in a temper can shout down a woman. It's going to be pretty hard to smother the passport records of Canada and the consular visas of the United States."

Dr. Cross outlined the procedure necessary before any child is placed in a home for adoption.

Application for the child goes first to the child welfare commission. In case such an application is from the United States, the American consul is advised, and must approve of the application before it is granted.

AFTER THIS, the application is taken to a district court judge, who must be satisfied that the child is going to a good home and will receive proper upbringing before his approval is given to the adoption of the child.

A judge's approval must be obtained in every case, whether the home desiring the child is in Canada or the United States.

IN HER LETHBRIDGE statement Dr. Whitton said she felt that the minister's remarkable sense of the truth was only matched by his "amazing courtesy."

Dr. Cross did not comment on the personal attack on himself.

When interviewed, he had not seen Dr. Whitton's statement and asked if she was trying to make an accusation of the fact that babies were occasionally sent to the United States.

New Soapless VEL Helps Save Nylons

Says Frances Thompson noted homemaking authority

Unless you're unique, you are just like the rest of us whose stock of lingerie is at an all-time low. This means more frequent, more careful washing of girdles, panties, slips and stockings. So along comes VEL to the rescue.

VEL is not a soap and does not act like a soap. It's a wonderfully gentle new cleansing agent which is safe for the most delicate garments: yes, even for precious nylons.

HOW TO USE VEL

Here's what you do: sprinkle a little VEL into a basin and pour on lukewarm water. Never rub or wring fine lingerie—just squeeze repeatedly. VEL dissolves instantly making light, foamy suds. As you wash through your undies one after the other you'll find the suds subside, but don't add any more VEL. Unlike the milky-white appearance of soap and water, VEL leaves the water as clear as soft water in a rain barrel. This clear water literally lifts off the dirt, which you'll see (with alarm!) at the bottom of the basin.

NO SOAPY FILM

VEL guards and brightens colours and makes clothes smell sweet and fresh. Also at long last we've found something which leaves no soapy film even on black underwear. Stockings stay sheerer looking, and all your fine things feel softer, untarnished by "soapy scum dinginess". Here's to soapless VEL!

Would Do Well To Forget Fiancee

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 26 years of age and engaged to a girl of 21 with whom I am desperately in love. But our engagement has brought to my attention a trait of her character that is beginning to make me uneasy and perplexed. Although she is the picture of health, she is always suffering. Nobody ever had so many aches and pains. She has a headache, or her back hurts, or her legs are sore, or she has a pain in her tummy or her arms, or her jaw is awfully sore.

In winter, she suffers from the cold 24 hours a day. In summer, she almost perishes from the heat. A small pimple, cut or bruise renders her completely helpless. Work or recreation she avoids like the plague. She is always eating something that disagrees with her and she always gives in to her pains.

SHE IS the only girl in the world for me, but I am convinced that this entire suffering complex of hers is all in her mind. She is the most friendly and likeable girl you could ever meet, but this fault is beginning to get on my nerves. If she suffers this much in the prime of her life, how will she be when she reaches 50 or 60? I am so crazy about her that I would marry her if she held the pains she has now, but I would like some advice on what to do about the situation. Can you help me?

ANSWER: You certainly must be crazy if you are determined to marry the girl aches and all, and let yourself in for a lifetime of listening to the moans and whines of a complaining wife. No man who was in his right mind would commit such a folly. The only advice I can give you is to treat her to break off your engagement and leave your sorrowing Susan to enjoy her poor health without your having to pay the doctors' bills.

Don't delude yourself for a minute into thinking that marriage will change her. It won't. In fact, it will aggravate the symptoms, for wives favorite alibi is some ailment that they cherish because it excuses them from doing anything they don't want to do and permits them to do whatever they want to do. Also, I would remind you that it is cheaper to set up a yacht or fly your own plane than it is to have a wife who is a perpetual doctor's bill. Furthermore, I would call your attention to the fact that a whining, complaining and neurotic wife is about as dull company as you could pick out. Nothing is more boring than to listen to other people's symptoms.

I would say that this girl is a case for a psychiatrist, not for the altar. Or else she is just bone lazy and I am inclined to the latter belief. Don't marry this girl if you value your happiness.

Decision Expected On Park Meters

Whether or not parking meters will be installed on downtown streets will be decided by a special meeting of city council to be held Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

A lengthy report was filed by the city commissioners at the last city council meeting with the recommendation that the question of congestion of downtown streets be discussed at a special meeting of council.

In that report it was stated there was little chance of the parking problem being solved through off-street parking because of the shortage of suitable downtown parking places.

It was suggested that council give consideration to the installation of parking meters, and a lengthy report on their successful operation in Canadian and United States cities was submitted for the information of aldermen.

Workers Needed On Alaska Highway

Go northwest, young man, not simply west. There are jobs open today in Canada's northwest. Western Army Command headquarters here announced vacancies in civilian tradesmen's occupations as well as the spring thaw clearing the overland link with Alaska, work is getting underway along the 1,200 mile northwest highway system.

Many jobs require filling at Whitehorse, as well as at permanent camps along the route where permanent employment in maintenance camps and on construction jobs is available.

The vacant jobs range from laborers to machinists, and include mechanics, road equipment operators and carpenters. Salaries run from 150 dollars a month to 225, for qualified tradesmen.

The Book of Knowledge (Department: Animal Life)

This and the following articles are taken from the Book of Knowledge and can be clipped for saving in a reference book.

MYTHICAL CREATURES OF THE SEA

In yesterday's article, we told you of some of the strange imaginary animals and birds in which people believed in olden times. There were also mythical creatures of the sea in which our ancestors believed.

There were fabulous creatures called harpies and sirens which were said to draw seamen to destruction. The harpy had a woman's face and body, but the talons of an eagle. The sirens were supposed to have lovely voices which drew navigators from their course at sea and lured them onto rocks, where their ships were wrecked.

Homer tells us, in the Odyssey, that the wily Odysseus (or Ulysses) thought of a way to cheat the sirens. He put wax in the ears of his sailors. He had himself tied to a mast, for he wanted to listen, and listen he did as the boat went past the singing sirens. He was charmed by their melodies and tried to hurl himself toward them, but he was tied fast to the mast, and the crew, having wax in their ears, could not hear him order them to cut the cords that bound him.

Gigantic whale spouting great columns of water through tubes in its head, according to old-time fables.

The size of the whale should be enough to satisfy anybody. Some are more than 100 feet in length. But this was not enough for our ancestors. They described the whale as being about 960 feet long and 480 feet broad. It was said to have two horns, or tubes, through which it sent great columns of water that would sink any ship. Water-spouts may have been the real basis for this idea.

This monster was said to come up to the surface of the water, bearing quantities of sand upon its back. Sailors would approach in their ships and, mistaking it for an island, would cast anchor in its back, land, and make a fire on it to cook their meals; then the whale, feeling the heat, would dart down into the sea, carrying men and ship.

The kraken was the most terrible of mythical sea beasts. There were supposed to be sea bishops and sea monks who did all sorts of alarming things, but the kraken was the worst of all. It was a creature whose back was said to measure a mile and a half in circumference, so that, as it floated on the waves, sailors mistook it for an island. The kraken had arms like the tallest masts of ships, and with these it could seize the greatest vessel and pull it down beneath the waves.

It was a Norwegian who first spread the story of this monster. There can be no doubt that he really did see a very large cuttlefish. Nobody knows how big the biggest of these really is, but we know that its body is nothing like what the frightened man thought he saw, nor are its arms capable of upsetting a ship.

Fanciful tales also were told of the sea serpent. Probably there were sea serpents once, and it is just possible that they yet exist in the great depths of the sea but, so far, no story about them has managed to stand unshaken. Ribbon fishes have been mistaken for sea serpents; a line of whales or of dolphins with peculiarly shaped backs has had the same effect; and many other curious sights have misled men into telling the same old story.

Then there were the mermaids and the mermen. The mermaids were supposed to be beautiful women having the tail of a fish, but they were only manatees and dugongs, or sea cows. All the mermaids of our poems and stories are lovely in feature, but the animals themselves are rather hideous.

The great virtue of the mother mermaid or dugong is her love for her little one. When she feeds it, she raises herself in the water and clasps the little one to her, holding it with one flipper. While at a distance, a sailor might imagine the pair to be a human mother and her small baby in the open water. The manatees and dugongs live on seaweed, and no doubt observers thought that this seaweed was mermaid's hair. One kind of merman was called a sea bishop, because it was supposed to have a mitre-shaped head.

Stamp Collector Speaks On Hobby

Robson Lowe, British philatelist, at present on a world tour, was guest at the Optimist Club luncheon held Monday in the Macdonald hotel.

HE SPOKE primarily on philately and also delivered a speech on general conditions in England at the present time.

He said that the turnover in stamps is now in excess of 50 million dollars a year, and the war did not damage more than $120,000 worth of stamps.

To balance this, more old stamps were found in wrecked buildings. In one shattered building alone, 150,000 good stamps were found, more than 100 years old.

He mentioned the value of many stamps, one of which was an 1857 Canadian twelve pence stamp, now valued at $3,000.

Negligence Alleged As Hospital Sued

Damages totalling $26,000 are sought in a statement of claim filed Tuesday in supreme court by A. W. Miller, K.C., Edmonton barrister on behalf of Mrs. Elsie Book. Defendant to the action is The Sisters of Misericordia, operators of the Misericordia hospital.

It is alleged in the statement of claim that Mrs. Book suffered third degree burns to her left arm when she fell against a hot water radiator in the hospital on Sept. 24, 1946. The accident, it is claimed, was due to the defendant's negligence.

Renters Warned, Watch Lease Forms

Rentals section of the prices board in Edmonton has so far received no complaints of abuses or evasion of the new regulations permitting a 10 per cent rental increase and providing a two-year tenancy lease.

Declaring it was possible that such could occur, Wilfred Y. Archibald, regional rentals officer, said Tuesday that tenants should be careful to note any deviations from or additions to the conditions printed in the lease form.

"The order and the lease form are comparatively simple and easy to understand if read intelligently," he said.

"If however, there is any doubt in the mind of the tenant regarding the provisions and regulations, and his rights in the agreement, he is at liberty at all times to bring the matter to the attention of this office," said Mr. Archibald.

ZAM-BUK

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It seems a long time ago since diapers were folded in a triangle for the small fry. The modern baby-diaper is an oblong. The width should be sufficient to go half way around the baby, then the length goes from back to front through the legs and the front width meets the back and is pinned at the sides with two, large safety pins.

The advantage of the oblong diaper is that it is loose through the middle; and that the width can be adjusted as the baby grows. In folding the diaper it will always be longer than is needed, as most diapers of this type are 40 inches long. But the extra length can be folded up and this thickness will be placed in the front for a boy baby and in the back for the little girl.

When persons have to take what choice of material is available, they may have to manage a diaper from a 36 x 36 inch material, such as cotton flannel. Then the diaper may be cut 20 to 22 inches long and the 36 inch width, be used as the length of the diaper. Some such diapers should be made in squares for as the baby grows this larger type diaper will be useful.

If one can buy one's choice of diaper then the most popular material is a light weight, but absorbent one similar to a heavy chamois cloth. This is called hospital gauze and is made up by various manufacturers to their own specifications. Despite their light weight, if folded properly they are adequately absorbent and they are much easier to wash and dry and keep free of stains than the heavier type diaper materials. Babies, in no matter what type of diaper, need to be changed often enough so that their skins are not affected by the dampness. Before and after each feeding, always, and then often enough between feedings to keep them comfortable. The tiny baby often cries when wet, but as he grows he becomes accustomed to wetness and it is his parent who must show him the advantages of being dry. Then he'll be more easily trained when he is of an age for control.

Our leaflet No. 9, "Ammoniacal Urine," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Compensation Act Will Be Studied

Appointment of a committee to study the Alberta Workmen's Compensation Act and possibly submit a brief to the legislative committee of the provincial government, will be made at the weekly meeting Wednesday of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce executive council, President Charles Garnett announced Tuesday.

The Alberta Legislature set up a special committee headed by Dr. J. L. Robinson, MLA for Medicine Hat at the last session, to receive submissions on proposed changes in the act.

At that time the committee invited submissions from organizations throughout the province, to be made by June 1.

Public sittings of the committee will be held later in the summer at Edmonton, Calgary and other Alberta centres.

License Sale Means $90,000 To Fund

Alberta's new unsatisfied judgment fund, set up for the reimbursement of accident victims in the province, should soon total $90,000, according to estimates by officials of the provincial secretary's department based on the number of license plates sold.

Deadline for the use of last year's license was Saturday, R. C. Arthur, deputy provincial secretary, estimated Tuesday that 60,000 new plates would have been sold for use on passenger vehicles, and W. T. Aiken of the highway traffic board said he thought that truck licenses sold would total around 30,000.

Each license represents an additional $1 to the unsatisfied judgment fund.

It was thought that 80,000 driver's licenses would have been sold when the figures are all turned in.

University Chorus To Go On Tour

A tour of southern Alberta by the University Mixed Chorus has been arranged by the cultural activities branch of the department of economic affairs, it was announced Tuesday morning.

Arrangements have been made for the chorus, led by Gordon Clarke, to make six appearances in the south of the province, the first one at Didsbury on May 6. The final appearance of the chorus will be on May 12, south of Calgary.

THE OPENING of this new business establishment will add to the ever growing list of fine new lunch counters, and grocery stores in Edmonton.

During the September, 1946, auction sales, more than $3,250,000 worth of Australian wool changed hands.

AT LAST!... THE ONE HAND LOTION

YOUR WHOLE FAMILY CAN USE...

CLEAN, ANTISEPTIC

Satin Sky

GUARANTEES SOFT SMOOTH HANDS

IN 43 HOURS

Sure my mittens got wet building that snow man! But my hands aren't chapped or red—because Mommy rubs SATIN SKY on my hands every night at bedtime!

No, I don't have to wear clumsy gloves hanging out clothes even on the coldest days SATIN SKY keeps my hands chap-free in the worst weather. Protects them from harsh soaps—and makes me proud of their suit beauty.

I work on machinery, so my hands were rough, nicked and sore. I needed a hand lotion but I couldn't stand the "stinky" odor all of them had until SATIN SKY came along. I like SATIN SKY'S clean, brisk odor—and the way it keeps my hands looking and feeling fine! No more soap scum!

No more bother and extra expense of keeping separate hand lotions for Mother and Dad with maybe something else for the youngsters! Here's the one hand lotion that pleases men and women—old and young alike!

Not a feminine "cosmetic," but an all round family remedy for the quick relief of chapped, cracked or reddened hands. Satin Sky fulfills the hand care needs of Dad and Junior, as well as Mother and Sis.

Men in particular go for Satin Sky in a big way because it does a fast, efficient, overnight job—and is free from clinging perfume. Makes a fine after-shave lotion, too, so refreshing to tender skins!

Women welcome Satin Sky's gentle but sure protection against roughening effect of strong soaps, and exposure to wind and cold weather. Then, too, its fresh odor cannot conflict with their favorite perfumes.

WORKS IN 43 HOURS OR YOUR MONEY BACK

You apply Satin Sky only at night, using only 1 of 4 drops. Just 3 applications are guaranteed to soften and smooth even badly chapped and roughened hands. Get Satin Sky today! If you are not entirely satisfied with the results after 43 hours and a double application, your money will be instantly refunded.

Father: "If you boys don't quit quarreling over your wheel, I'm going to sell it. You know we can't afford two wheels, and I'm sick and tired of this constant quarreling."

Father: "What do you think of this plan? One week the wheel belongs to Joe and the next week to Tom and the non-owner asks the owner's permission when he wants to use it."

Plans which head-off quarrels are much to be preferred to parents' ineffective scolding.

Leeds Folk Work Together To Build Modern Centre

By Hal O'Flaherty
LEEDS, Yorkshire, (GDN)—One city in a home-hungry world has its building program half-finished. It is this manufacturing centre in the Midlands of England.

Here in Leeds, citizens work in harmony and things get done. Veterans and others are moving into new homes by the hundreds and swarms of workmen are bringing additional homes to completion.

Leeds' planning board has set a target of 33,000 houses in 30 years, but even this may be exceeded as experience with prefabrication develops. American "prefab" bungalows are proving highly satisfactory and more will be built.

This city's efforts at rebuilding go back almost three decades. Perhaps it was because Leeds had more to do than its neighboring cities that it tackled civil problems immediately after the First Great War and today as far advanced with them.

Towns Were Crowded
Back in the middle of the last century, many towns like Leeds were built, with small houses crowded as close together and as near factories as possible.

Primarily, it was the manufacturers' convenience or the landlords' profits that dictated the city planning. In many cases, the manufacturer was also the landlord. He built long rows of houses, back to back, within easy walking distance of his factory. And he charged small rents but managed to make a profit. The health or welfare of the working people never entered the city plans.

As a result, there are today scores of towns all over the Midlands looking very much like duplicates of each other. The same rows, the same floor plan. One room down and one up. The front door flush with the street. Two little windows looking out to the street in each room. A fireplace downstairs.

Such towns and cities must now begin to undo the errors made nearly a century ago. The evils arising in the crowded slum areas can no longer be tolerated.

Work on Slums
Leeds went to work on slum clearance in 1920. Ten years later, several large sections of tenements had been demolished. In one, covering some 30 city blocks, there is now a model apartment building called the Quarry Hill containing 936 flats and tenanted by 3,300 people.

This project is remarkable for the perfection of its garbage disposal system. Ordinarily, visitors take such things for granted and pass them by because nearly all are the old-fashioned haul-dump-and-cart-away type. Leeds' city fathers put in a different and a far better system.

It is called the Garchey system designed by a French engineer. Through this system, the housewife is able to dispose of all refuse, tin cans, bottles, waste paper and garbage. It all goes into a large container under the sink. Everything is carried away by water and suction to a central disposal plant nearby where it is dried, and burned, the heat being used to produce hot water for the community laundry. The end product, composed of dry cinders, is hauled away once a month.

Method Far Superior
For cleanliness and efficiency this method is far superior to any that has been tried in Europe. Incidentally, it is the only such system in England.

The municipal government of Leeds now owns and operates 23,000 houses and flats but has 22,000 names on a waiting list. The housing program probably never will end, although the immediate demands will be met within five years. By that time, other slum sections will be ready for demolition.

Many projects for double houses or individual homes are scattered around the outside edges of Leeds. All are carefully laid out by the city architect's office with streets, sewage and power. Some are built around playing fields and all have their own shopping centres. All are municipally owned and operated.

Community Project Planned
One piece of planning in connection with these suburban developments was especially well done. It is called the "aged persons project" and involves the erection of one-room, kitchen and bath apartments for the old people. They are grouped in adjoining houses so that the occupants, will have company and be able to help each other. Everything possible is done to make them easy to operate and to keep clean.

These flats for the aged are maintained rent free so in effect the municipality is building a home for old folks as it marches along with its housing projects. But instead of putting all of them in one poor house, they live normally and alone if they so desire.

Some day these city-built and managed homes will just about pay their own way but at present they are costing a lot of taxpayer money. The taxpayers are not complaining, however, because they know that Leeds must either keep its people decently housed, or lose them, which would mean losing the factories.

Tunnel Becomes Cheese Warehouse

CLEMSON, S. C., (NANA)—An unfinished project of a century ago—a railroad tunnel through a mountain—is the means by which a superlative new blue mold cheese soon will be made in America in the same way similar cheeses are made in the sandstone caves of France. With nature providing constant temperature and humidity.

Already the cheese has been produced experimentally by Clemson college dairy specialists and experts have pronounced it better than imported Roquefort. The war prevented commercial production, but the project soon will offer a new livelihood for farmers in this area.

The Clemson college dairy department has formed a co-operative, acquired stumhouse mountain and the unfinished tunnel, and farmers have already ordered 50 Swiss cows whose milk is especially good for making Roquefort-type cheese.

Clemson laboratories will provide the parasite blue mold which gives Roquefort its distinctive flavor. The co-operating dairymen will handle the commercial aspects of the project.

Basic French Roquefort cheese is simple to produce, but aging and curing had been the problem in America. Artificial aging was too expensive for commercial production.

THE MAIN THING
The psychologist explained how easy it was to judge a man's character from his clothes.

"Socks show a man's temperament very clearly, they tell whether he is generous or avaricious, nervous or phlegmatic," he announced.

"They also keep his feet warm," muttered an unbeliever.
